

6/

FEEDBACK

IS

CANDY

KYLE
RUBINI

When do you know you're ready to release your work and face feedback from others?

When your work is done.

Think of it like Halloween. The costume is your art. Once you've got your costume on, you go and ask for people's candy.

So, once you've finished your art, go ask for people's feedback.

Great work!
Amazing!
Incredible!

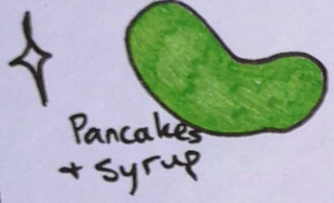

I like your pumpkin, but its shape is a little unnatural.

I hate the way you answer questions. Focus on the answer not your metaphor. Fool.

POSITIVE

Pancakes + Syrup

Margarita

Nostalgia

Bacon

HELPFUL
Lemon

Stolen wedding
cake

Feedback is meant to improve your work. just as candy improves your life. The reality however is that you don't know what kind of candy you'll be handed. Sometimes feedback really is like million flavour jelly beans. But ~~you~~ know what it'll taste like ahead of time.

Kitty litter

NOT HELPFUL

Pirate ship barnacle

Existential despair

NEGATIVE

Toenail clippings

Sandpaper

Tears of a drag queen

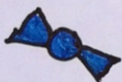

Should we push ourselves to receive feedback even when we're TERRIFIED?!

I don't know.

I mean, I'm not sure. Well, it depends.

If you're creating art just for the joy of it, then who needs FEEDBACK?!

If you want to improve your work, then yeah you kind of need it.

Maybe try finding ways that are less scary for you. That could be asking 1 close friend or asking a group of strangers anonymously.

Of course feedback can be terrifying. But remember: U R NOT UR ART!

The quality of your art has NOTHING to do with your value as a person.

Everybody starts somewhere. So chances are you'll start with some "bad" art. "Bad" art is GREAT. It gives you a ROOM 2 GROW!

"MISTAKES" 2 LEARN FROM!

Maybe someday you'll laugh at your "bad" art. Maybe someday you'll frame it. Just please, share it with others.

PROUDLY SPONSORED BY

CERTIFIED PROTEIN SNACK