Why do you think music is important

+ how does it affect different people?

I can only speak for myself.
Music has had varying levels of importance for me + had so many different functions.
But first example: music lifts me UP.

I'm just goin' to the store
You might not see me anymore
↑ don't know why

This is what I want to do: list the ways I connect to music + focus on specific songs/lyrics.
for example:

Don't hold back. I want to sing through your body.

break free. Cause it's And I'm carried by the sound.

Slip Away is my travelling song. One I play when I get to a new city. It's an exploration soundtrack. Now that the pandemic has grounded me, it's a nostalgic reminder of my thirst for adventure.

BUT
is this it?
What am I missing?
I've always felt somewhat disconnected from the power of music.

I tried learning guitar + piano as a kid, but I was never passionate or very connected. It was almost a chore.

I want to write about how music connects people or helps us feel.

But it all sounds too repetitive, superficial.

I want to dig deeper but I don't know how. I'll take this as an opportunity to accept my own limitations
